

OUTLET: Departures.com

DATE: March 14, 2019

REACH: 478,031

DEPARTURES

The Most Luxe Way to Visit the Galapagos Is on This New, Sustainably Focused Megayacht

They named it Theory.

By Erika Owen on March 14, 2019

Galapagos-based luxury cruise operator Ecoventura has a new yacht in its fleet and it's focused on treating our planet as good as possible. The new boat, named Theory, is the most sustainable megayacht the company has to offer travelers.

OUTLET: Departures.com

DATE: March 14, 2019

REACH: 478,031

DEPARTURES

A Relais & Châteaux member, Theory has all of the luxury amenities you come to expect with the title: king beds, rain shower heads, incredible restaurants, and panoramic views that make the most of the World Heritage site scenery. There's even a master yoga instructor. According to The Robb Report, a trip on the yacht will also get you in with small-group guided tours (there is one naturalist on board for every 10 guests).

Courtesy Ecoventura

The sustainability focus comes from the ship's design. The bow features a significant curve that helps the boat cut through waves, reducing drag. Ultimately, this helps Theory decrease fossil-fuel intake by 30 percent. There are also special wastewater systems utilized on the boat to make the most of the resources onboard.

OUTLET: Departures.com

DATE: March 14, 2019

REACH: 478,031

DEPARTURES

Courtesy Ecoventura

Ecoventura owner Santiago Dunn said it best in an interview with The Robb Report: "Why sacrifice luxury when you can integrate it with environmentally friendly aspects? Ecological shouldn't be synonymous with basic."

OUTLET: Departures.com

DATE: March 14, 2019

REACH: 478,031

DEPARTURES

Courtesy Ecoventura

You can read more about Ecoventura's luxury yachts and how to book your own luxe trip to the Galapagos on its website.